1. Climate

Tuscany is definitely not one of the coldest places in Europe.

If you are not going to the mountains, temperatures hardly go below 0°C (32°F) and when it snows in a city like Florence, everyone wants to take photos of the main sights because it's really not common to see a “white Florence”.

On average, November is the month with the most precipitation but October, December, March and April also generally get a good amount of rain without being super wet.

2. Live like a Local

You can find the real tuscan life: romance, rolling hills, vineyards.

A traveler like a local is keen to merge with locals to experience their culture and get a taste of their local cuisine.

You ventures out to small, high-quality vineyards that fly under the tourist radar and allow guests personal interaction with the winemaker and the opportunity to sample hard to find Italian small batch wines.

We want our guests to enjoy life like we do!

3. No line!

...and this is great for visiting many museums!

In this period it is much easier to enter museums and art galleries and enjoy this beauty!

We advise you to book museum visits in advance to the Accademia and Uffizi. It is not necessary to book other museums in advance. At the moment you book your stay at Le Torri, we advise you to book your museum.

The “Firenze Card” grants admission to the major museums. The card is Valid 72 hours.
